

COVER

Visa fixers sell the American dream to China's wealthy p.48

OPINION

Modi's moves send India into a self-inflicted slowdown p.30

FINANCE

North Korea hacks itself a bitcoin buffer against sanctions p.28

MARKS

Germany's stay-the-course election p.12

FINANCE

U.S. banks' flood insurance failure p.26

PURSUITS

Bordeaux is opening up nicely for tourists p.18

US

● Shifting Saudi economic policy topples a giant builder ● Recession chips away at working-class support for Putin ● Sponsors run for a two-hour marathon in Berlin ● Tiptoeing across the $1,000 smartphone threshold

● Download our app for must-read daily content

● Subscribe to our Daily IQ newsletter. Visit businessweekmag.com/newsletter

● Enjoy unlimited access to stories on businessweek.com. Visit businessweekmag.com/register and link your account

■ IN BRIEF

10 ● Dimon blasts bitcoin ● Teva finally finds a new CEO ● A record high for U.S. household income

■ REMARKS

12 As populists upend politics worldwide, German voters stick with what's working

■ VIEW

14 The Senate's smart start for soft power

1 BUSINESS

17 More and bigger storms are anything but a disaster for the reconstruction industry

18 Sponsors push for a two-hour marathon in Berlin

19 Hurricane Irma through the lens of one Florida family

2 TECHNOLOGY

22 Unions make inroads in an unlikely place: Silicon Valley

24 Apple, Samsung, and wireless carriers do their best to avoid saying $1,000

25 Innovation: A supersensor that can detect anything from a running faucet to an empty towel dispenser

3 FINANCE

26 Fraudsters turn from making fake credit cards to creating fake people

28 The mortgage industry and federal regulators team up for an epic flood insurance failure

29 As more sanctions loom North Korea amasses a trove of bitcoin

4 ECONOMICS

30 Modi's economic shock therapy takes a toll on India's growth

31 The opioid epidemic: A tale of two counties

32 A giant Saudi builder fails to adapt to the kingdom's changing business climate

42 "John is two people. He is the most charming man you will ever meet. And he is the biggest son of a bitch you will ever meet"

5 POLITICS

34 Getting Congress to pass real tax reform is going to be "so easy," huh? The numbers tell a different story

36 Putin may soon feel the pain of Russia's struggling working class